WISH YOU WERE HERE

More than a place to call home, these over-the-top estates are monuments to entertaining and living the most fabulous lifestyle

Visionary architect Peter Bohlin is perhaps best known for designing Apple's iconic stores in New York City, but now a piece of his architectural genius is up for grabs in Miami's Venetian Islands. This modernist home with stunning water views has four bedrooms and five-and-a-half baths. Covering 5,330 square feet, this architectural gem is characterized by clean lines, a back wall made entirely of windows and a suspended 23-yard lap pool with color-changing LED lights. Its simple white exterior and abundance of windows allow the natural flora of South Florida to take center stage. Inside, a floating staircase leads to a lavish master bedroom that almost seems to hover over the water. Whether you're dangling your manicured toes off the dock or swimming morning laps in the pool, this extraordinary home is outfitted only for the most fabulous Miami lifestyle.
